This year they have selected the Fairfield-Suisun City Visual Arts Association. The FSVAA has been asked to display and sell their artwork during the event. Artists may also donate a piece to the silent auction, but that is not required. 10% of all the artwork sold will be donated to FCSF.

All artwork must follow a theme of Fairfield, Wine, Vineyards, or the Suisun Valley. Please submit a completed Art Tag available at the link below.

Gallery Review

By Adrienne Emmering

The Napa Art Gallery is a local venue, in Napa, featuring the works of over fifty local artists. Its current show features dozens of small works by Pam Walton, an artist who works with calming colors – misty blues, beiges and other pastels.

One item, a small (6 x 6) work, depicts a restful country scene. Titled "That Old Fence"; it is a richly textured piece which features vivid orange trees, pale yellow hills and powder blue skies. The work is a blend of collage, acrylics and high gloss glazes. She also works with Buddhist themes as well, using the same pastel color palette, the colors suggesting a restful mood.

There is also a collection of handmade jewelry items, much of it original, and, frankly, very reasonably priced. One necklace by Lee Bufalini is an assemblage of copper-plated metal beads and assorted glass and ceramic beads. The brown and golden colors give the work a warm, rustic feel. Artist Lorraine Dolan specializes in animals and bright florals, rendered in pastels and translucent watercolors. She has a special love for cats and renders her animal subjects in watercolors.

FSVAA ARTIFACTS

Ceramist Tom Collins does sturdy, massive stoneware pieces. One item, "Wood-fired Bottle" is as large and imposing as a stone sculpture. This work has a fine, primitive feel, much like the work of ceramist Peter Voulkos.

The Napa Art Gallery is located at 1307 First Street, Napa. For Info, call (707) 254-2085.
